

Faith in Action

Faith Lutheran High School of Central Texas (FLHS) opened in 2017 and will graduate its first class, which consists of three students next year. It will also be the first year that all four grades will be offered.

The students who attend this school in rural Fayette County are having a unique high school experience. The classes are small, and there is much one on one interaction. Most students are Lutheran.

FLHS is renting facilities from Holy Cross Lutheran, Warda, and is supported through an association of six area Lutheran churches. Our LWML mission grant provides materials for chapel (Bibles, hymnals), textbooks for theology classes, and other curriculum needs.

Though small in numbers now, the students and staff are committed to high academic standards and Christian values. Archery, field and track, and a new basketball program are offered. Nikki Kueck, FLHS principal, is enthusiastic about the school's progress. She envisions steady growth in the coming years. The school also reaches out to the community with summer day camps which attracted 125 children this year.

FLHS seeks to engage young adults in a Christ-centered environment where faith and knowledge grow as one.

From left, Nicholas Awad, Magdalena Obersat, and Dylan Lambert.